The forecast for Friday was good with possibility of showers later in day- we got one at about 1600 by which time all visitors had arrived.

Saturday's weather was just right and the huge numbers were due to a lot of people coming because they knew it was our last day ever and we were also the only garden open in Sussex. Quite a few locals came – for the first time!!

Car parking filled Blind field and the reservoir field almost up to the bee hives and then on our neighbour's field, John said he would not have got 2 or 3 more cars in!

Tea queues were long but Cassandra chatted to them and everyone was patient. We had one cake left at close of play!!
